THE WHOLE

EXAMINATION

OF

H:G. o. 717. 6.

Daniel CASEY,

Who was juſt now Examined before my Lord Chief Juſtice Whitſhed, for being acceſſary to the Murder of Col Luttrell.

MR. Grace, Nephew to the ſaid Luttrel, who is now confin'd for Debt in the Four-Court-Marſhalſea, having ſworn an Examination againſt Thomas Caddle of Boot-Lane, Smith, and Richard Wilſon, lately brought from Cork, both which are now confin'd for the ſaid Murder; the ſaid Grace alſo ſwore an Examination againſt the ſaid Caſey, for which he was, this Morning, brought before my Lord Chief Juſtice Whitſhed.

The ſaid Caſey has been, for fifteen Years paſt, a Coachman to the late Lord Chief Juſtice Doyn, and the ſaid Caddle, being the Smith who ſhod his Lordſhips Horſes, they ſay, That Caddle and Caſey were ſo great together, that any thing the one could Command, was free for the other, inſomuch, that when the ſaid Grace, Caddle, and Wilſon conſpired together to murder Col. Luttrell, the ſaid Caddle went to the ſaid Caſey to the Stable of my Lord Chief Juſtice Doyn, where Caſey was Coachman, in order to borrow a Caſe of Piſtols from him, having told Caſey the Deſign; that upon the ſame, the ſaid Caſey went into the Kitchen, where there hung a Caſe of Piſtols, which he took and lent to the ſaid Caddle: That Caddle by the ſaid Grace's Directions, deliver'd the ſaid Piſtols, with Powder and Ball to the ſaid Wilſon, who, they alledge, has actually ſhot Col. Luttrell, aud that Mr. Grace paid him 30 Guineas for his Service, beſides a yearly Sallary during his Life. We hear, That no Perſon accuſes Caſey, but the ſaid Grace; and ſays, That he only was told the ſame by the ſaid Caddle; upon which, having ſworn his Examination, my Lord Chief Juſtice Whitſhed ſent the ſame to the ſaid Lord Chief Juſtice Doyn, who immediately ſent his Gentleman along with the ſaid Caſey to my Lord Chief Juſtice Whitſhed's.

Every one gives the ſaid Caſey an extraordinary good Character: however, it is thought, without very good Bail, he will be committed; and as God Almighty requires Blood for Blood, I wiſh the Saddle may ſoon be ſettled upon the right Horſe, and that horrid barbarous Murder may be reveng'd upon the true Actors of the ſame; as for Wilſon, if there be any Proof againſt him, his Charractor will be a great Means to give him a Lift, for, they ſay, that he is an old Tenant to Newgate; and beſides, when he was examin'd before my Lord Chief Juſtice, he could give but a very indifferent Account of himſelf, for when my Lord ask'd him where he lodg'd on the 22*d* of October, 1717, being the Night that Col. Luttrell was ſhot, he anſwer'd, That he very well remembred where he did lodge, bnt that he was advis'd to tell no body, until his Tryal, and then he would produce Witneſſes enough to prove where he lodg'd on the Night aforeſaid; but his Reaſon for all this he would not tell. 'Tis thought, that a great many more will ſoon be brought over the Coals for the ſaid Murder, who were Confederats with the former. Dublin, Jan. 13.
